

Trusting Relationships: The Pulse of Nursing

Thursday, April 22, & Friday April 23, 2010
Holiday Inn Harbourview, Dartmouth, NS

This year the Nursing Leadership Conference will explore Emotional Intelligence (EI) and Mindfulness.

Speakers include:

Lea Brovedani, a recognized expert in emotional intelligence will help participants build their most important currency – their emotional intelligence – to foster trusting relationships. Lea will help participants achieve improved results by building communication and trust. It is her ability to weave stories that get to the heart of the matter that engages and energizes audiences.

Mary Campbell, Psychiatric Mental Health Clinical Nurse Specialist, will provide an introduction to Mindfulness (an effective approach to health promotion and stress management), focusing on its relevance for nurses and leadership. Mindfulness strengthens capacity for attention and reduces the risk of burn-out.

Registration is available on-line at <http://www.regonline.com/NLC267>

A detailed program agenda will follow Feb. 15, 2010, or go to www.nsaho.ns.ca, www.clpnns.ca or www.crnns.ca
